During our Day of Discovery on March 31st,* we saw a beautiful logo and slogan unveiled for our transitional period. The Moravian lamb is in the center representing Christ as the center of our faith. This emblem is referred to as Agnus Dei - the Lamb of God. The Lamb is surrounded by characteristics of our common commitment as followers of the Lamb: Live Faith, Know Love, Be A Voice of Hope.

During Holy Week and throughout the Easter season, we live our faith in response to knowing of God's sacrificial love in Jesus Christ. It was, and is, the sacrificial love of God in Christ that is the hope of the world. Resurrection life springs from God's redemptive purposes in Christ's life-offering that vanquished the reign of fear.

Live. Know. Be.

With Hope,

Pastor Jeff

Notes from Lewis

Our Passion Week Services here at Fairview are always a very meaningful time for all of us. This year we begin our Passion Week Services with a Lovefeast on Palm Sunday, April 14th at 10:00AM. Our services will continue each evening, Sunday through Friday, at 7:00PM. Several individuals and groups will share their musical talents with us during the week and help to make our times of worship even more meaningful. The Chancel Choir will sing on Sunday, Thursday and Friday nights. Our Fairview band will play on Tuesday night.

Most of you will remember that we had a meal prior to the Monday evening service last year. We are expanding that this year to include Monday and Friday evenings at 6:00PM. There is no set charge for the meals, but donations will be accepted. Monday evening we will enjoy homemade soup and sandwiches and Friday night will feature pizza and salad.

In addition to our services here at Fairview, the Great Sabbath Service will be held at Home Moravian Church on Saturday, April 20th at 7:00PM with conductor Drake Flynt and accompanist Mary Louise Kapp Peebles. The service will feature Requiem by Gabriel Faure (edited by John Rutter). The program will also be presented at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday, April 14th in the Smith Saal at Salem Towne. This wonderful time of worship is sponsored by Salem Congregation.

Not many denominations have as many services during Holy Week as we do. Therefore, this would be an excellent time for you to invite your family and friends in the community to attend with you. This will provide them with some excellent worship opportunities as we focus on the events of the last week of Jesus' life on earth.

Fairview's Fabulous Band Director

Gerald Van Krause is his name, and he joins such notable Fairview band directors from the past as Burton Snyder, Anna Snyder and Robah Ogburn. Robah, by the way, is Van's first cousin., and much of their musical career has paralleled. The Fairview band has always been great, and with Van at the helm, it is as good as ever. This is to tell you something about Van Krause, his family, where he has been, and how he got to Fairview:

Van's parents are the late Edward and Kathleen Ogburn Krause. Father, Edward Krause, worked as an HVAC technician at Piedmont Sheet Metal and mother, Kathleen, worked in a school cafeteria. They lived in Southside and had two children: Larry, Van's older brother, was born in 1945, and Van was born in 1955. Van went to Griffith Elementary, Griffith Junior High School, and Parkland High School where he graduated in 1973. Van's father was musically inclined, and when Van was a child his father would play the guitar, and the family would join together at home and sing. Sometimes his mom's family would have a chicken stew where they would gather around and sing blue grass. From his early childhood, Van was drawn to all types of music and loved it all.

Van's main musical instrument has always been the trumpet, but he can play all brass instruments, the bass guitar, the harmonica, and he has some knowledge of woodwinds. Early on, back when Van was unable to read music, he discovered that he could play almost any song on the trumpet just by hearing it sung. You might say he had a natural ability to play music by ear, however, as he honed his musical skills, he became aware of just how important sight reading music would be to his career, which pushed him to buckle down and learn it.

Van's real debut to the music world came when he was very young at Advent Moravian Church, where he played in the Advent Moravian Church Band. Clearly, as his life has shown, music had struck a special chord in him, sending him on his lifetime quest for musical excellence. After Advent, he would go on to play in the bands at Hopewell, Mizpah, Providence and Pine Chapel Moravian Churches. At the same time, while he was developing his skills as a member of church bands, he was also playing in the elementary school band and junior high school bands and later as a teenager in the brass band at junior high school and high school. Also he played every chance he got in school concerts, as well as in the marching, pep, and stage bands. On top of that, Van sang in high school chorus and even studied music theory and composition in high school.

Over the years, Van trained under such renowned band directors as church band director, C. Vestal Whitt, and school band directors, Robert Clark and Robert Hunt. Early on, it was Mr. Whitt who had seen a special musical ability in both Van and Robah, and encouraged them to play more, and particularly, directing them that they should play duets at the Moravian band concerts. "Mr. Whitt was very strict," Van noted, then added, "But I guess at our age, we needed that."

Van's list of musical accomplishments and performances kept growing exponentially. Back in the 1970s, still teaming up again with cousin, Robah, who was on the trumpet and Van who was on the tuba, they played in a German Quartet, which consisted of a trumpet, a tuba and two clarinets. In the late 1980s Van played trumpet with the Winston-Salem Community Band, and later, he played first cornet in the North State Silver Cornet British Brass Band.

If it was music, wherever it was, Van was enthusiastic and ready to play. He led a Baptist Church choir in the 1990s, and later played with a Church of Christ instrumental band for a few years. You could say he had become an ecumenical musician.

From 1990 to 1995, to add a little variety to his music, he even played bass guitar and sang with the gospel bluegrass group, "The Right Direction," that recorded two studio tapes. Amazingly, at one point, he assembled several groups for Civil War Reenactment music. In addition to that, he brought in his son, Kevin, and they now play in two Old Salem Costume bands. Also, Van has played in countless small groups, ensembles and quintets.

For the past many years, Van has directed and/or played for a number of Moravian Churches, including 40 years, directing the Advent-Hopewell Moravian Band. Also, he directed the Advent Trombone Choir from 1985 to 1992, the Advent Praise Choir from 2000 to 2005 and has directed the Bethesda UMC Chancel Choir from 2011 to the present. Also, he sings baritone with the men's "Heritage Quartet" at the Methodist Church. Furthermore, he has played church choir cantatas and special anthems, and he has played solo trumpet for many, many weddings, and still plays Taps at various funeral services.

NOW, if I could get a drum roll please! . . . AND BEST NEWS OF ALL, at least for us - is that Van Krause has been the director of our own Fairview Moravian Band from 2017 until the present, and we hope for a long time to come.

Now for a reality check – for Van, all these performances have not actually been hard work – because they were borne out of love, and Van has been living his dream. But unless you are a big time musical director like Lawrence Welk or maybe like Lewis Phillips, a church band director must be multi-talented and be able to supplement his or her income with a real money-paying job. So, in order to afford to live the dream, Van had to become industrious early on. So, he took a job at the tender age of thirteen, working in Ted's Bait and Tackle. Then later, he got involved in the sheet metal business with employment at Piedmont Sheet Metal and after that at Forsyth Sheet Metal where he learned sheet metal fabrication as a layout man. Next, he went to Westinghouse TCP where he spent five years making turbine generator components, then he went to A/C Corporation, then to Sylvester and Cockrum Mechanical and then to Logan HVAC. As Van talks about his many jobs, he smiles, recalling a time when a young, novice race car driver named Richard Childress came to his shop, seeking assistance in repairing the sheet metal on his damaged race car from a fender bender at a recent Bowman Gray race.

Van has a wonderful marriage of 43 years, and he and his wife, Teresa Black Krause, have two wonderful children: a son, 38 year old Kevin Krause who plays brass and plays for A-H Band and the Fairview Band. Van and Teresa also have a daughter, 34 year old Krystal Tarikas, who plays the drums in the A-H Band.

Then comes the MAGNIFICENT SEVEN! These are the Krause's seven well-loved and truly magnificent grandchildren. They include son Kevin's children: 18 year old Cayla Kathleen, 9 year old Kaleb, and 4 year old Kierstyn plus daughter Krystal's children, including: 11 year old Katlin, 6 year old Kadence, 3 year old Killian and 2 year old Kimber. Van and Teresa consider themselves truly blessed to have such wonderful children and grandchildren who they love and adore very much. And, in case you didn't notice, Kevin and Krystal carried on with the "K" names.)

Van is the 2010 award recipient of the coveted James V. Salzwedel award which recognizes one person each year for having given excellent and long-lasting service to music and worship in the Moravian congregation. Van also has a fifty year recognition award for playing in the Moravian Band, this year marking his 58th year. These are great honors and well deserved. We at Fairview are very proud of our great band director and consider ourselves blessed to have Van with all of his experience and credentials, not to mention his great Christian heart.

But, you haven't heard about Van and Teresa's WILD SIDE! : In their younger years, not so long ago, they rode motorcycles. They rode a Honda 1100 cc. Shadow, then, moved up to three Harleys over a 15 year 100,000 mile period. The two of them have taken many cross country trips, long and short, sometimes being gone for up to a week at a time. It occurs to me that Van must be the luckiest person in the world to not only have his great love of God, his great children and grandchildren, his great love of music, but also to have such a wonderful and loving wife. Is the old adage true? - Behind every good man is a great woman. " I think it must be!

I asked Van why, with his great musical talents, he chose to be a church band director. His answer was clear and concise. "Because it's my calling!" he replied emphatically. And for all of us, there is nothing like the awe-inspiring sound of hearing firsthand the Fairview band performing under Van Krause, particularly when Van does his trademark trumpet adlib, sending the sound into swooping chromatic flourish. The majestic sound is truly a "wow moment", making the congregation sit up and take notice.

Van says that it is a joy to perform for the great people at Fairview, and it is so rewarding to use music to help ready them for worship by enhancing the spiritual setting and preparing their mindset for the pastor's sermon.

I asked Van what he felt was the most important need of the Fairview band. His response was simple: "GROWTH! The future of the band depends on growing our numbers," he said. "If there is one thing the congregation can do to help, it would be to join the band or encourage someone you know to join."

The Fairview congregation wants Van Krause, his family and the Fairview Band to know that we love them all and the part they play in bringing the inspiring music at Fairview. They bring about a special reverence, which makes God's Word more vivid and brings us on a closer walk with our Savior and Lord. THANK YOU, VAN KRAUSE AND FAMILY! THANK YOU FAIRVIEW BAND!

Respectfully Submitted, Danny Ferguson
